Supports McClellan
To the Editor:
Marquette and Northern Michigan University are justly proud to count among its citizenry individuals who understand the need for education and are willing to practice them even if it means some sacrifice and a loss of material comfort.

As a native of Marquette and an alumnus of Northern Michigan University, I wish to support the views of a recent editorial regarding Dr. Robert P. McClellan in his quest for re-election. The editorial correctly states that the Mining Journal is against the re-election of Dr. McClellan based on the dismissal of a number of important professors.

Faculty Vote
To the Editor:
Let me correct two misconceptions presented in the article of April 28 regarding the Faculty Vote.

First, Dr. McClellan was NOT "defeated" in the Faculty Vote. The voting was merely for a new president and not for a seat in the Senate. Each faculty member has the opportunity to vote for a candidate of his choice, not just for any "plag". Nobody can require the faculty to give the same candidate a vote.

The candidates for the president's post are listed in alphabetical order on the ballot. The names of the candidates are not selected, and the faculty is free to choose the candidate of their choice. The highest number of votes is determined by counting the number of completed ballots.

Second, the statement that the university has 1,108 full-time employees, but only 314 were permitted to vote on the resolution of "no confidence" in the administration is misleading. The statement is incorrect as it does not account for the fact that there are additional employees who are not officially part of the academic staff. The statement in the article is misleading and not representative of the true situation.

The statement about the "no confidence" resolution being passed by a small majority of the faculty is also incorrect. The campaign for a "no confidence" resolution was conducted by individuals who were not officially part of the academic staff and not representative of the true sentiments of the faculty.

More On Marching
In reply to "Marching Feet" by Mrs. Lindroos.

Mrs. Lindroos, those marching feet are not getting any shorter. They are marching better. For these marches feet have been with us since the dawn of time. The people are marching and they are marching with the force of the people is the force of the people is the force of the people.

They're marching in the back streets and the in the dark. They're marching against tyranny, pestilence, and all the things that can happen. And, Mrs. Lindroos, they marched because they had to.

To imply that marching feet signal the arrival of another Hitler or Lenin is absurd. The marching feet of Patrick Henry and Martin Luther King still echo in the halls of history.

You say your heart grow cold. To me, that's because you don't understand. To me, that's because you don't understand.
