Cessation Of Classes Demanded By Blacks

Four Molotov cocktails were thrown into portions of Kaye Hall, a residence hall on the University of Michigan campus, but little damage resulted. One of the cocktails was hit by a security guard, who was slightly injured.

The discovery of the device, which was thrown through a window, caused a miniature explosion. The device was made of a metal canister and contained a mixture of gasoline and other explosive materials.

The device fell through the window and caused minor damage to the residence hall. No injuries were reported, but the incident caused a temporary evacuation of the hall.

The incident was investigated by university officials, and the police were notified. An investigation is ongoing to determine the identity of the person responsible for the incident.

The University of Michigan has a strict policy against the possession of firearms and other weapons on campus. Any violation of this policy is taken seriously and may result in disciplinary action. The university encourages all members of the campus community to report any incidents of this nature immediately.
