For it is life, the very life of life.*

The splendor of beauty;

A dream of happiness, and every tomorrow a vision of hope.*

Diversity

Life is made up of adjustments: both little ones in everyday living, and the larger ones that come only occasionally. The manner in which we accept these adjustments will determine whether we are happy and serene or discontented.

Discovery

No one knows all the answers, and if he thinks he does, he has stopped thinking and growing. Part of being alive and in touch with the world around and within you lies in searching for your own answers, in asking your own questions.

Bergen Evans

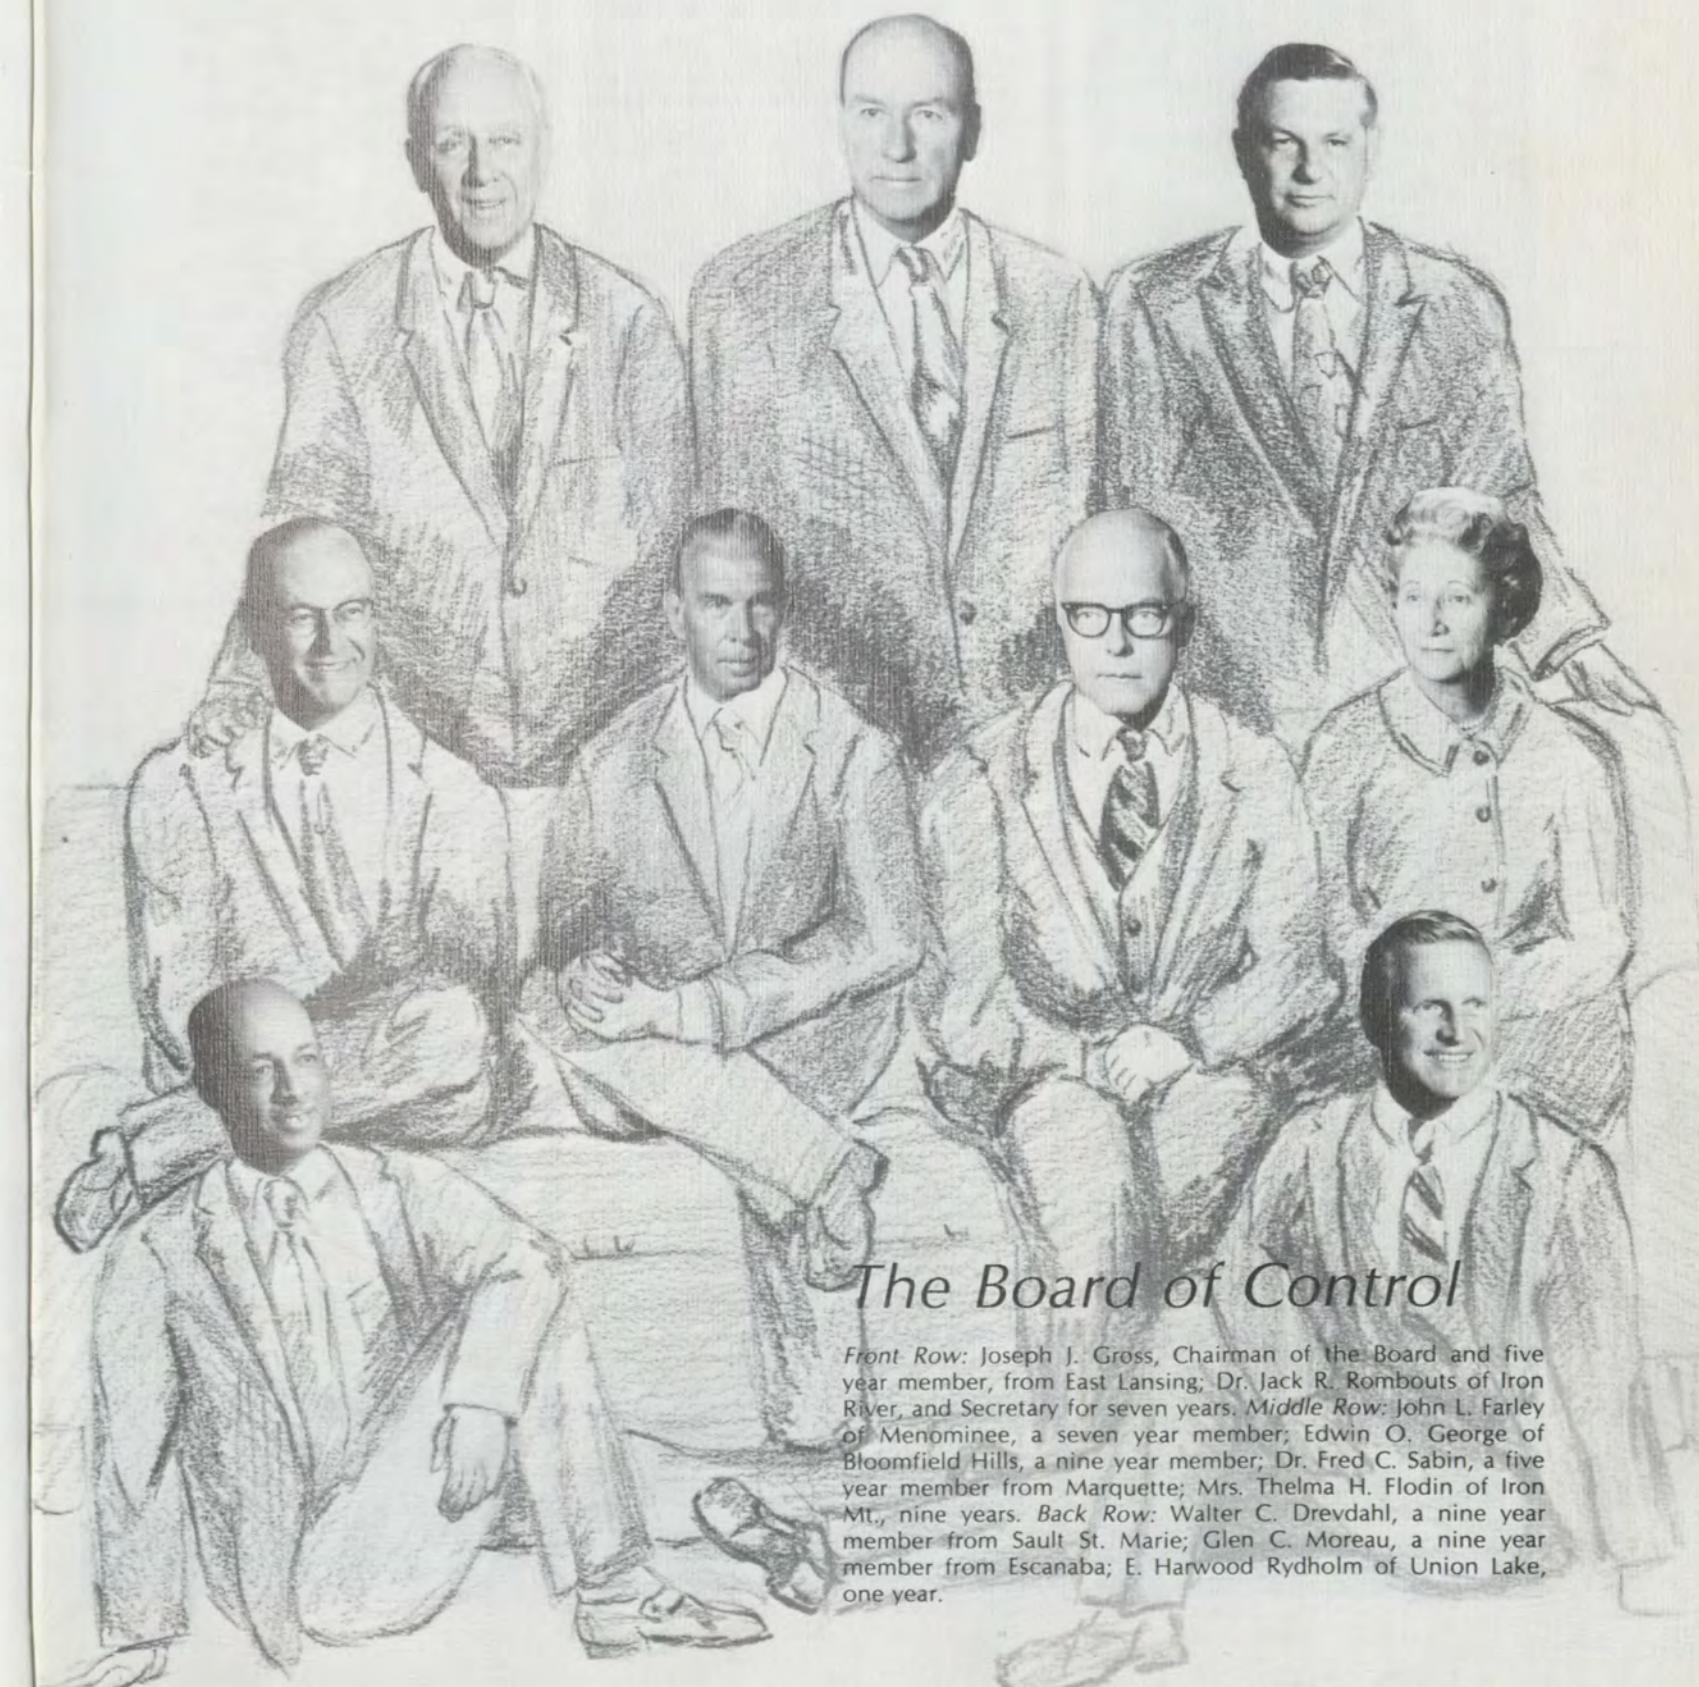

Perhaps the most universal of the problems which has intrigued the mind of man is that which deals with the world and the universe in which he lives and his existence in this environment. Man has held varying views of his status in the universe. These have emerged as part of the total social, ethnic, and religious environment of the time. And, our current views of man in his universe are similarly the result of the elements which constitute the scientific, cultural, and religious thinking and philosophies.

Man's existence in the universe has always been an intriguing mystery. It has whetted the intellectual appetite of thinkers and will continue to be the object of concern as man expands his knowledge and contact with the universe. It would appear that the more extensive our direct contact with the universe, the deeper the mystery seems to grow.

Our further understanding of it will come to those who search with open minds. It is a personal and enduring search. To be a conscious part of it is to make life worthwhile.

This university offers the intellectual approach to the great questions of life. Here the doors to study and investigation are open. And this learning leads to a greater understanding of what our own lives mean and what life is all about. Yet, for the greater part, the mystery remains. The learning is but a beginning; the apparent understanding just a glimpse. To become a part of this intellectual search is to become a part of life and the pulse of the universe.

ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANIZATION

The School of Arts and Sciences

Variety is the key descriptive word for the School of Arts and Sciences. Students may select courses from any of the fifteen departmental areas, each of which offers a diversity of informative and relevant courses. Majors or minors in these areas prepare students for careers in government and industry, public school education, professional programs, entry to graduate school, or provide a liberal education basis. The departments offer a myriad of extra curricular activities like special interest clubs, student art exhibits and music recitals, and opportunities for overseas study.

Graduate degrees are offered in seven of the program areas in The School of Arts and Sciences. The Master of Arts degree is conferred by the Biology, Chemistry, English, Geography, History, Music and Mathematics Departments. In cooperation with the School of Education, graduate programs leading to an M.A. in Education are also offered. Many graduate students are employed at the university as teaching assistants. Others are involved in federally funded research programs such as the shoreline erosion problem currently being investigated under the leadership of Dr. J. Hughes, associate professor in the Geography department.

School of Education

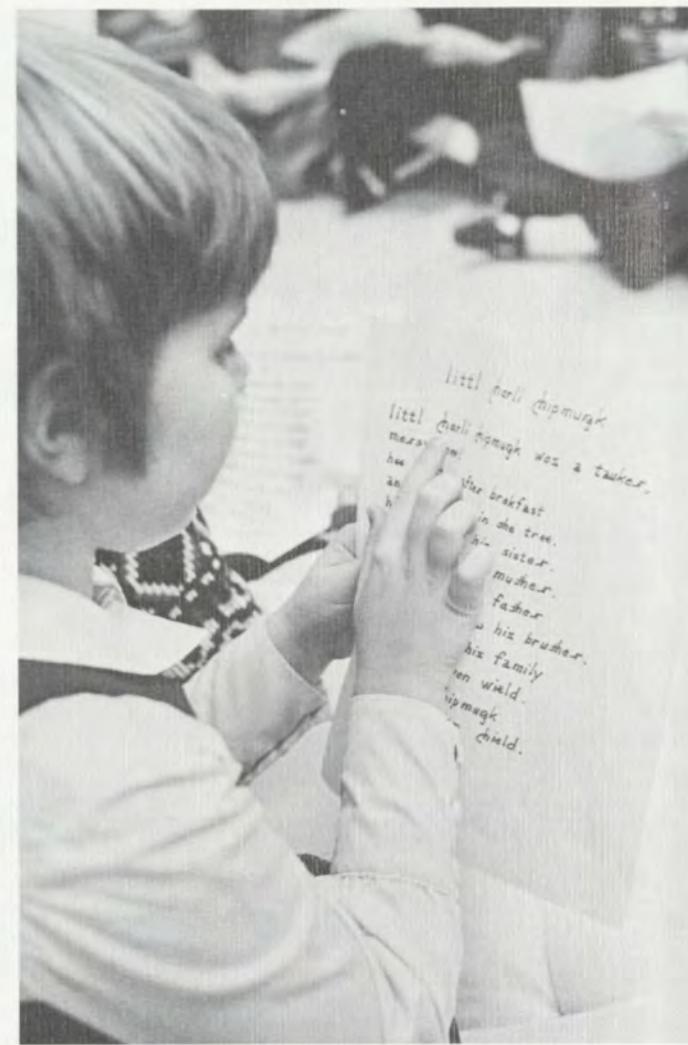

The School of Education offers a wide diversity of programs in conjunction with various departments throughout the university.

A major part of the School's curriculum consists of preparing students for careers as elementary or secondary teachers, or teachers of the mentally handicapped. A teaching certificate may also be earned in the field of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

Several related services are provided by the School. A Curriculum Materials Center is operated by the university library and the School maintains a Selective Admission policy for aspiring future teachers. Experience in student teaching is also provided and required.

Included in the School are the departments of Home Economics, Industry and Technology, and Library Science. Under the approval of the State's Division of Vocational Education, the Home Economics department prepares teachers for Home Economics, Consumer, and Family Life Education positions. Students may also prepare to enter the American Dietetic Association, the American School Food Service Association, or the American Restaurant Association. The department of Industry and Technology prepares students for several options. They may choose careers in Industrial or vocational education, supervisory positions in industry and building, or Traffic Safety education.

The department of psychology is also included in the School of Education. The undergraduate major is designed to introduce the student to research methodology and to provide basic understandings in the scientific study of behavior.

School of Business

The three departments of Accounting and Finance, Business Education, and Management and Marketing, compose the basic framework of the School of Business.

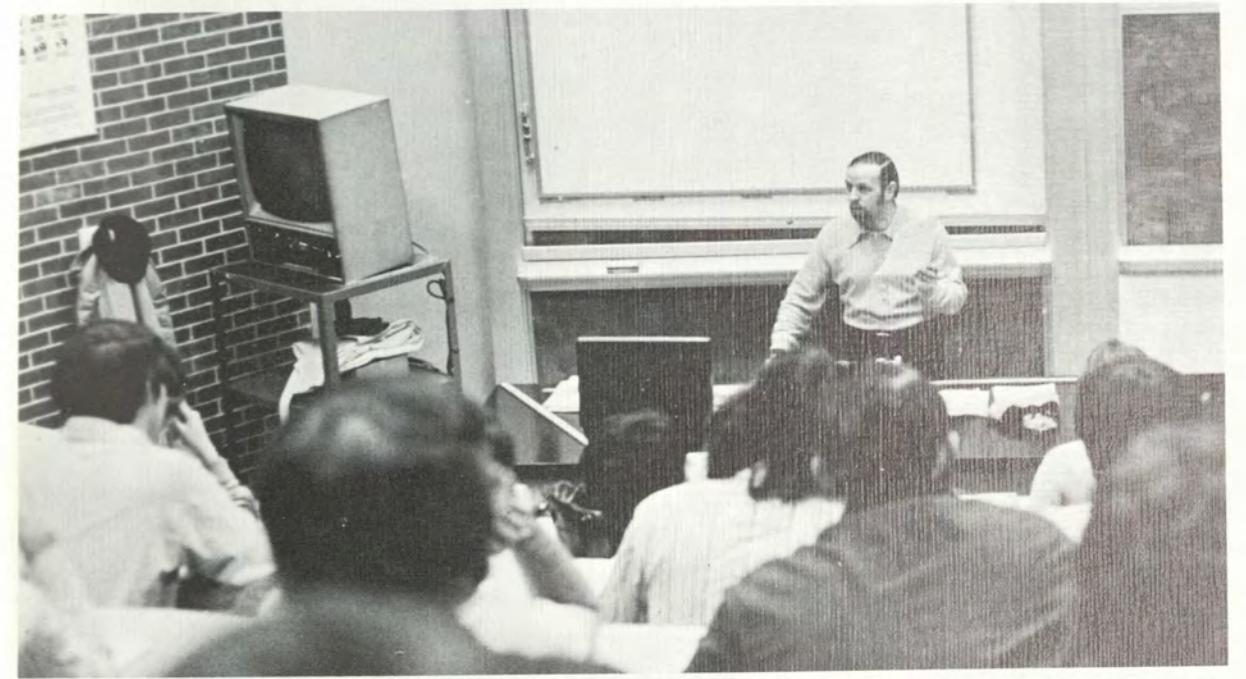

Curriculum in the Business Administration category (Accounting, and Finance, Management and Marketing) is designed for those students pursuing a baccalaureate degree for application to careers in business, government, private, and non-profit institutions. Students learn the necessary skills that will enable them to become influential in planning, organizing, operating, and controlling a business enterprise. Accounting and Finance majors may center their training around general, industrial or public accounting, or financial management. Management and Marketing majors may opt to concentrate on marketing, personnel, or production management.

The four-year curriculum in Business Education prepares students to teach vocational high school courses which lead to office and distributive occupations. A MA in Education with an emphasis on Business is also available through this program.

In addition, the School offers several special business programs. Students may complete a one-year secretarial course or a two year, Associate degree program in the accounting, general business, retailing and sales, or secretarial fields.

Marketing communications are discussed with Assistant Professor, James W. Camerius.

School of Nursing

The basic goal of the School of Nursing is to prepare the student to plan and implement comprehensive health care programs for all ages and in a variety of settings. A Bachelor of Science degree is obtained from the School through both professional and general education courses. These classes provide the knowledge and clinical practice required for students to offer efficient, up-to-date nursing care. They also prepare students for staff positions in hospitals and community and public health agencies. Two programs are offered in the field of Nursing. One, the four-year program, leads to a BS degree and examination for licensure as a Registered Nurse. The other, a three semester program, is provided for students wishing to become Practical Nurses.

Early this fall the department of Speech Pathology and Audiology was added to the School. This action was taken in the hopes that eventually the entire School of Nursing will be consolidated to include not only Speech Pathology, but also the medical and X-ray technology programs and allied health programs now under development. Students entering the Speech Pathology and Audiology program may earn a Master's degree to obtain full certification or may elect to work for a teaching certificate. Clinical experience is provided in Northern's Speech and Hearing Clinic and by summer internship at Bay Cliff Health Camp.

Speech Pathology and Audiology

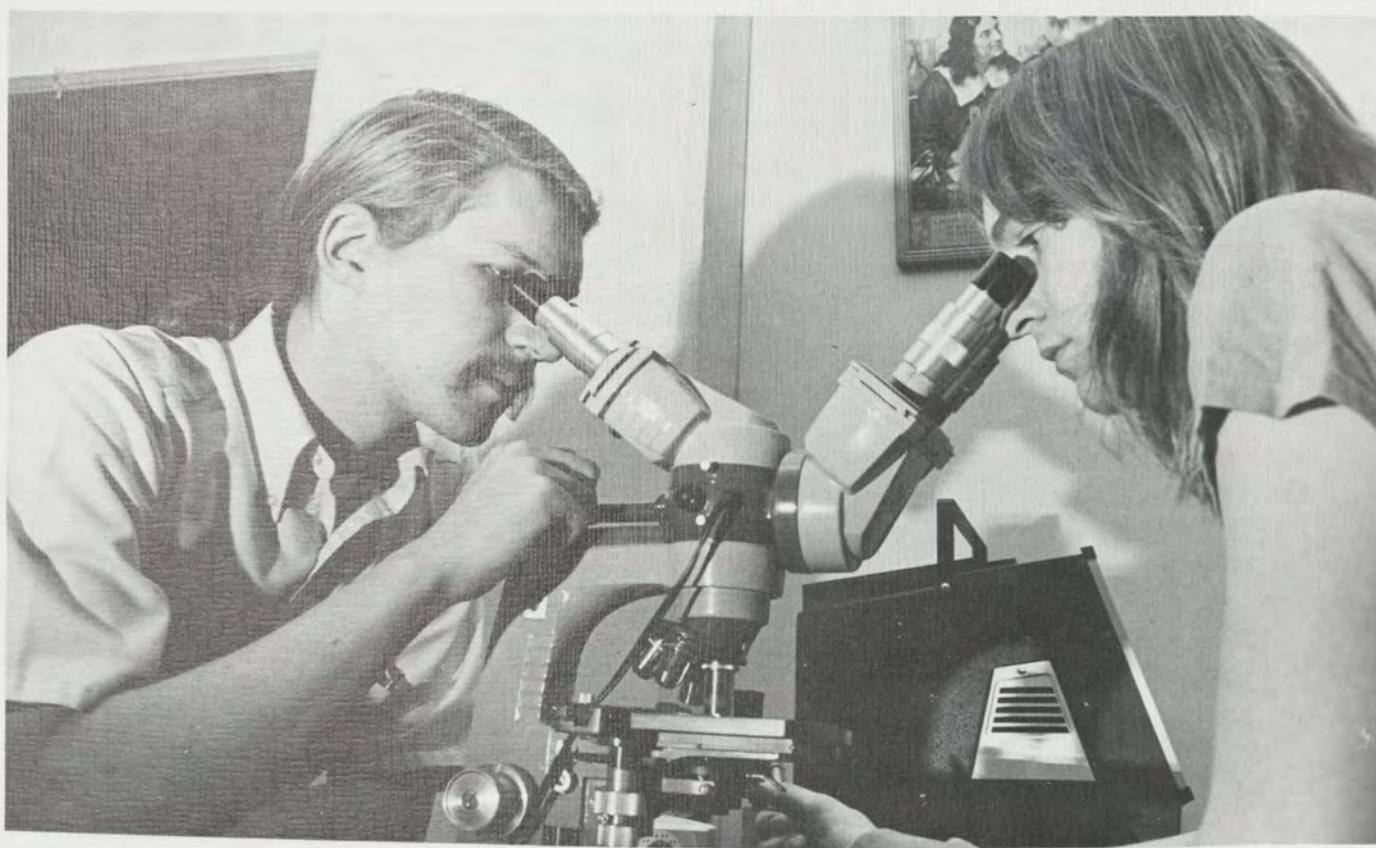

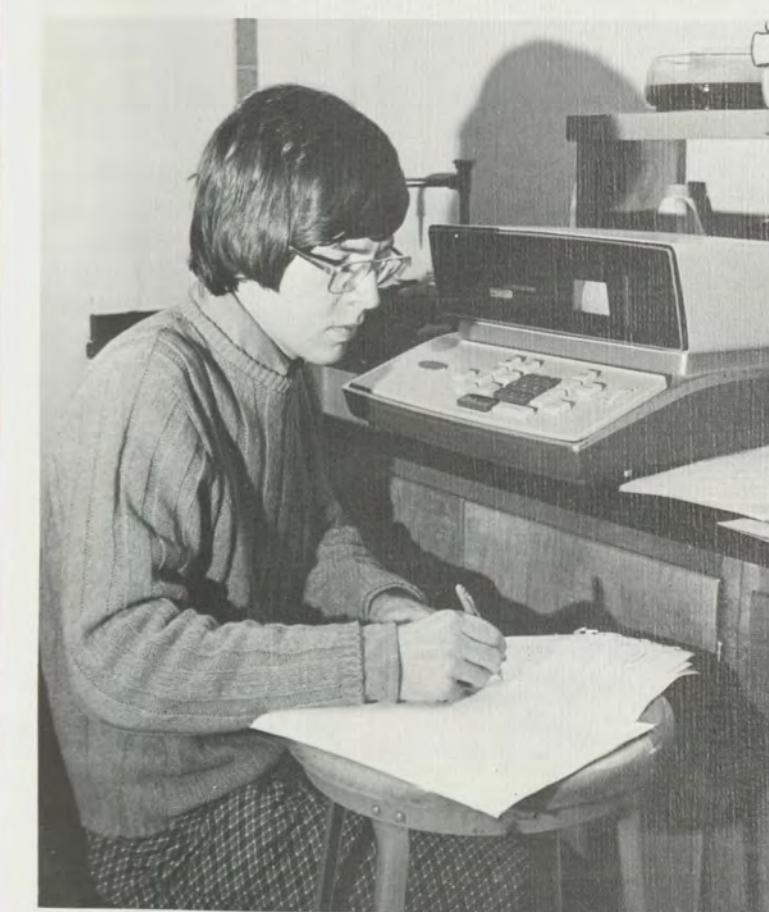

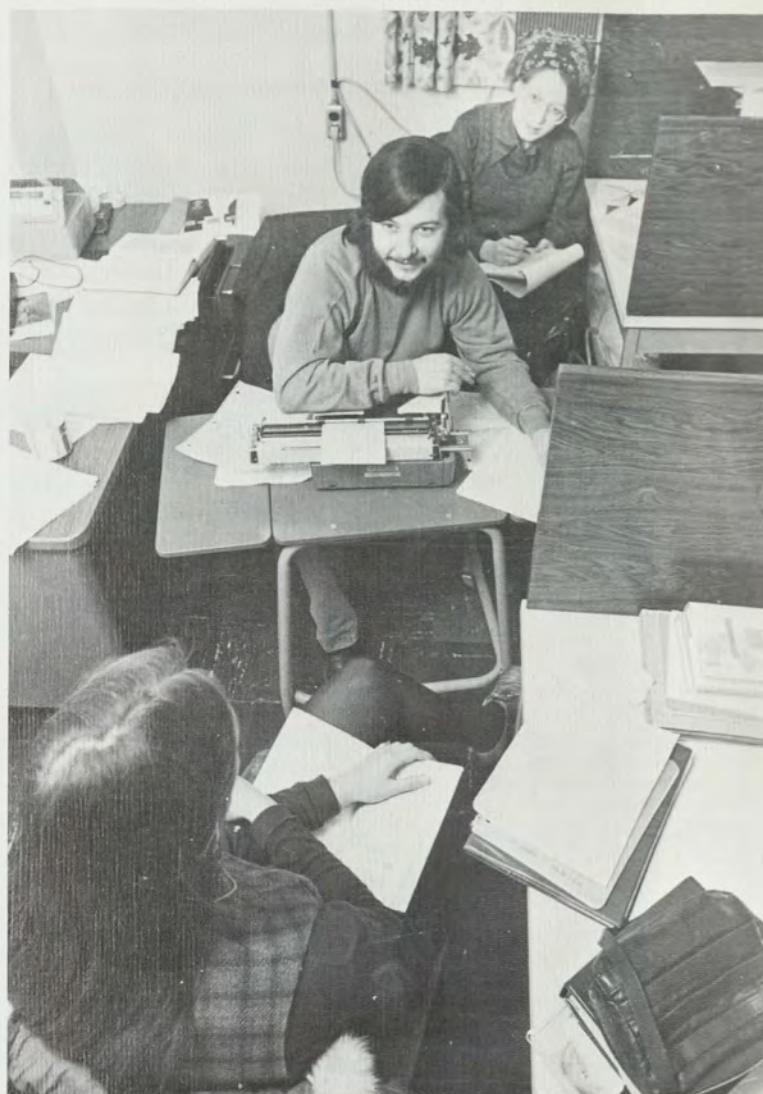

Peter B. Smith, Jr., Ph.D., Director

The School of Graduate Studies

Although Northern began to offer graduate level courses in 1938, it was not until 1960 that the School of Graduate Studies was established. The present program now confers a Master of Arts degree in the fields of Biology, Chemistry, Education, English, Geography, History, Mathematics, and Speech Pathology. A Master of Science degree is also available in the field of Accounting.

Applicants for graduate studies, according to their prior education and present objectives, are placed in either degree, non-degree, or unclassified categories. In order to be admitted to the degree program, the student is usually required to hold a minimum GPA of 2.5. If the student cannot meet the GPA admission requirement, he may enter the School in a non-degree status. After completing twelve hours of graduate study and attaining a 3.0 GPA, the student may petition to be classified at degree level. The unclassified category is established for those students wishing to take graduate credit strictly for furthering their personal studies.

Northern's graduate students are active in many facets of university activity. Often, these students assist in the teaching of the Liberal Studies science labs as well as several other laboratory experience classes offered by many of the departments. Graduate students are also active in several State and Federally funded research programs being carried out by the University.

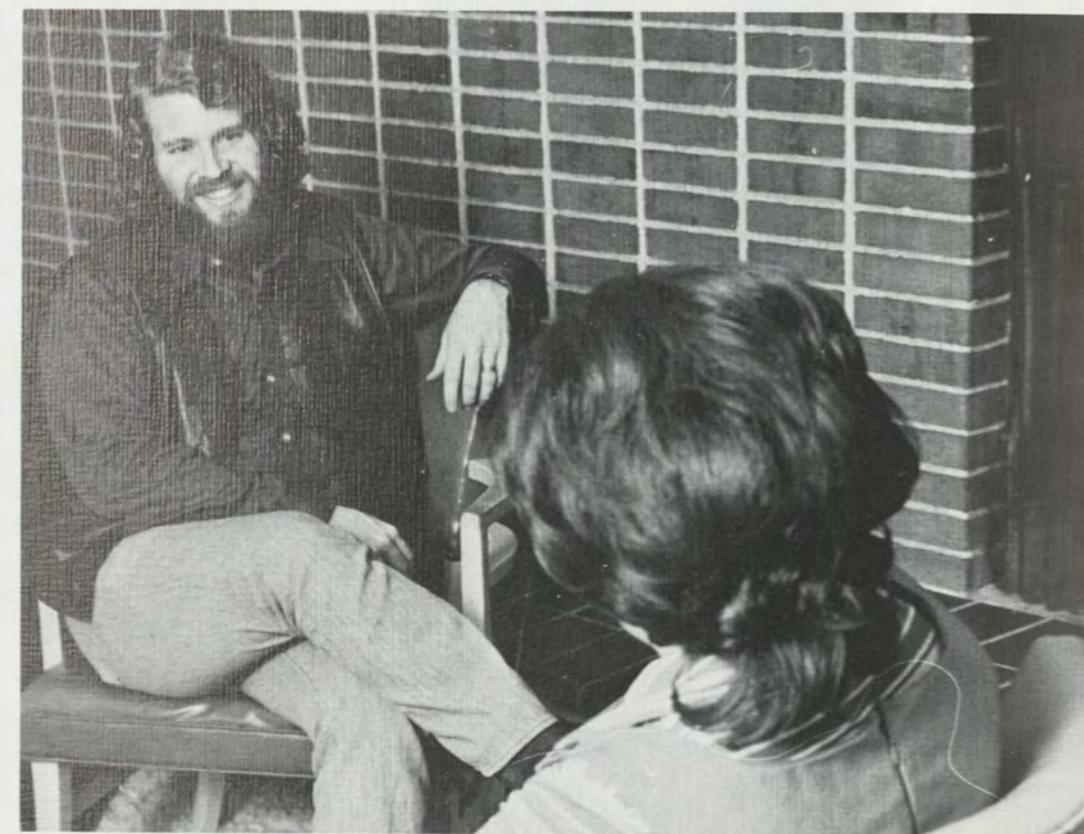

Student Aid Provided by Health Center, Security, Counseling

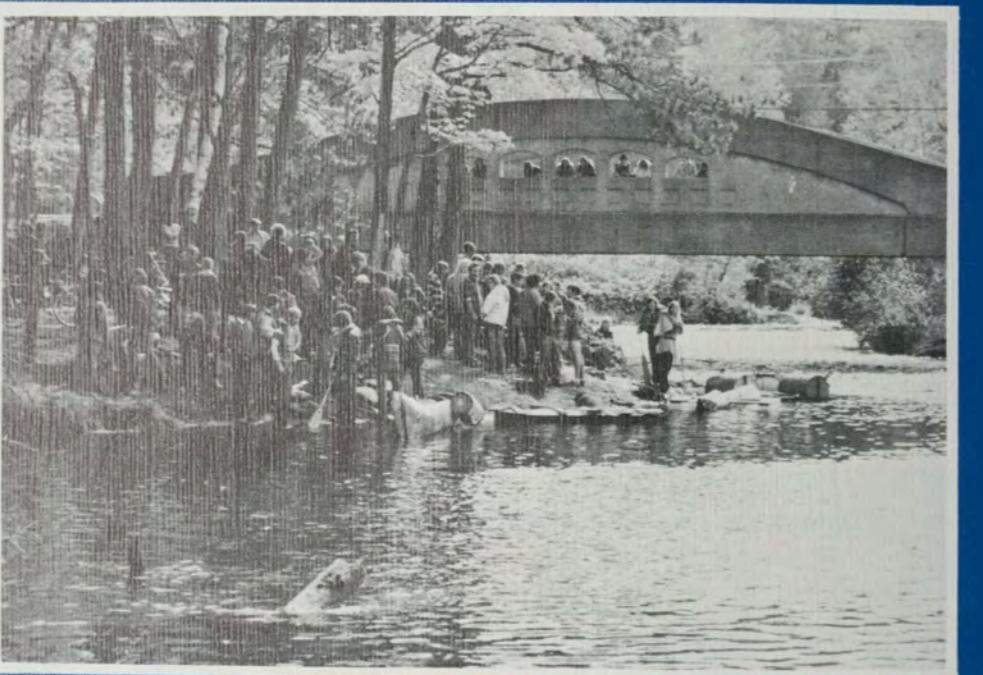

Among the several student services offered in the university community are those of the Security, Counseling, and Health Center departments.

The fourteen member staff of Campus Security is headed by Chief William R. Lyons. Included in their many duties are investigations of reports of loss or theft, gun registration and storage, law enforcement, motor vehicle regulation, and emergency ambulance services. Before being hired, officers are required to have some college education and, if they will be enforcing state laws, to have successfully completed a 256 hour basic police training course.

Vocational and educational counseling, personal counseling, and psychological and consultant services are offered by the Counseling Center. Headed by associate professor John Russell, the center's staff maintain a vocational information file, administer aptitude and qualifying exams, and counsel individual students.

Under the directorship of Dr. Barbara Lyons, a staff consisting of three full time physicians and ten registered nurses service the university Health Center. The Center operates an outpatient clinic and a twelve bed infirmary. Lecture series and discussion groups, such as the birth control seminar given by Dr. Lyons this fall, are also sponsored by the clinic.

FANTASTICS

Northern Michigan University's Entertainment Ambassadors, the "Fantastics," have performed over one hundred times since their first appearance in December of 1970. The multi-talented young men and women have received rave notices following their performances not only in Michigan, but over a four state span. The secret to their success lies in the fact that they do all types of music. Stylistically, they are the 50's, the 60's and the 70's all rolled up in one enthusiastic explosion of the finest in the sounds from the past three decades.

In January of 1973, the "Fantastics" will be entertaining our American Forces in the Caribbean, as USO representatives selected through the Department of Defense and the National Music Council. The tour will last five weeks and will include performances in Cuba, Central America, the Panama Canal Zone, South America, Trinidad, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, and the Bahamas.

Competition

All of life is a struggle . . . a great competition of man against man, man against nature, man against destiny.

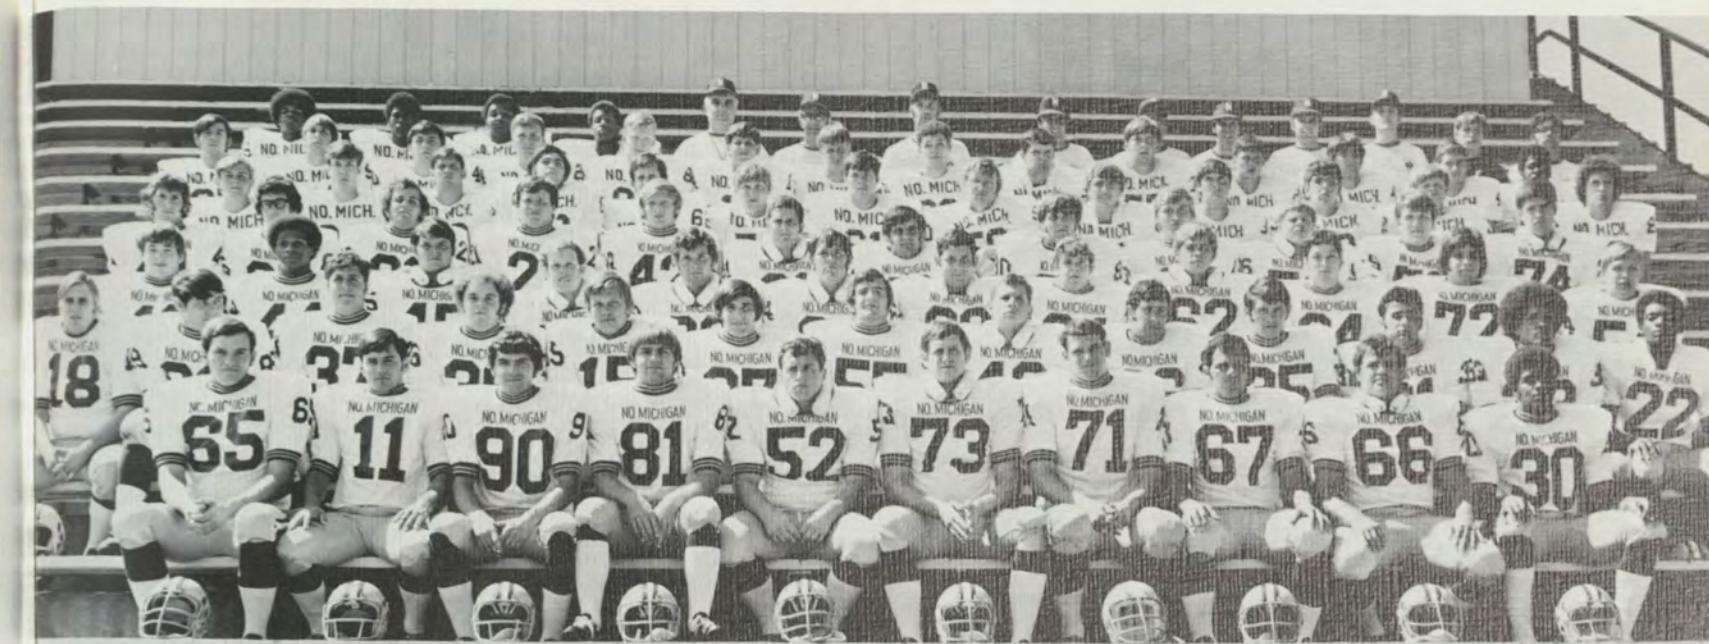

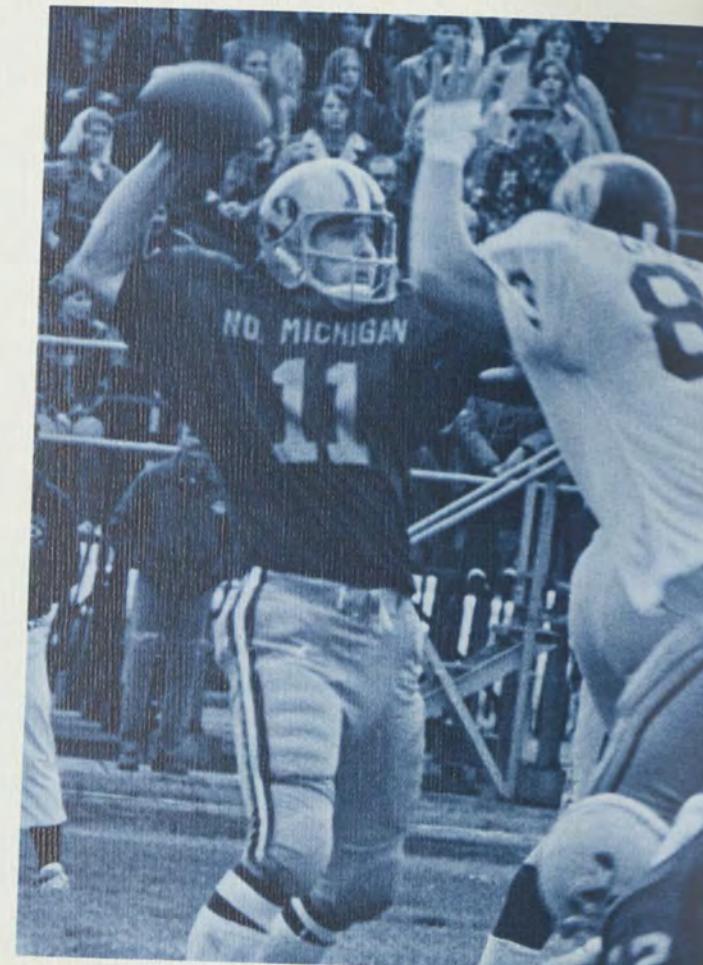

Gridders Experience Disappointing Season

Early season injuries of quarterback Pete Speier and half-back Larry Barnes contributed greatly to the losing season of Northern's 1972 football team. With such experienced players at key positions out of action, the Wildcats' chances of a winning season were severely hampered.

Although the team compiled a disappointing 2-8 win-loss record, several players gave exceptional individual performances. Golden Helmets, an award given after each game to the outstanding player, were collected by Gil Damiani, Pete Speier, Andy Andrade, Jim Rathje, Guy Falkenhagen, Arden Olson, Jeff Juneac and John Engel. Defensive middle guard Gil Damiani was also voted most valuable player by his teammates.

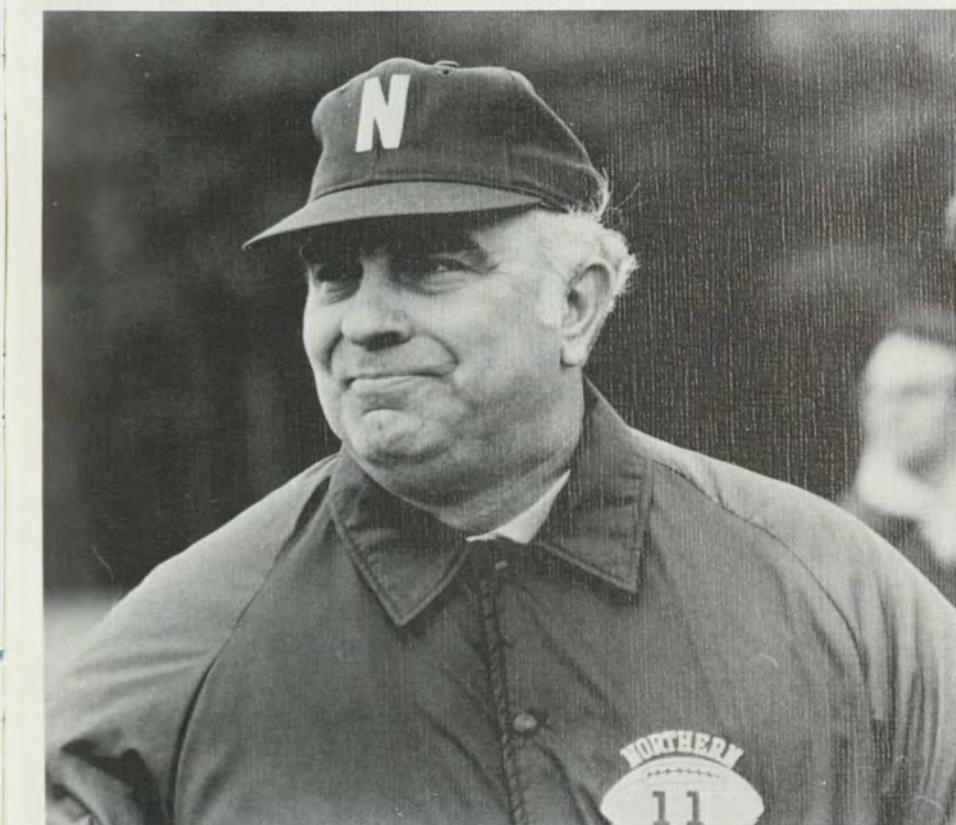

Halfback Andy Andrade led the team in yards rushing by gaining 724 yards total this season. He also was the season's high scorer with fifty points.

With the experience gained by this year's gridders, it is hopeful that the Wildcats' 1973 co-captains John Engel and Jim Rathje's team will improve next season's record.

Cagers End Season With Winning Record

Although Northern's 1973 basketball team had a winning season, the Cagers did not do as well as was expected. There was no visible explanation for the team's failure to fulfill their hopes of defeating a larger percentage of their opponents.

The team did not have a consistent high scorer, but did maintain well balanced scoring records among team members. Senior George Barber collected enough points to earn the honor of being Northern's second highest career scorer.

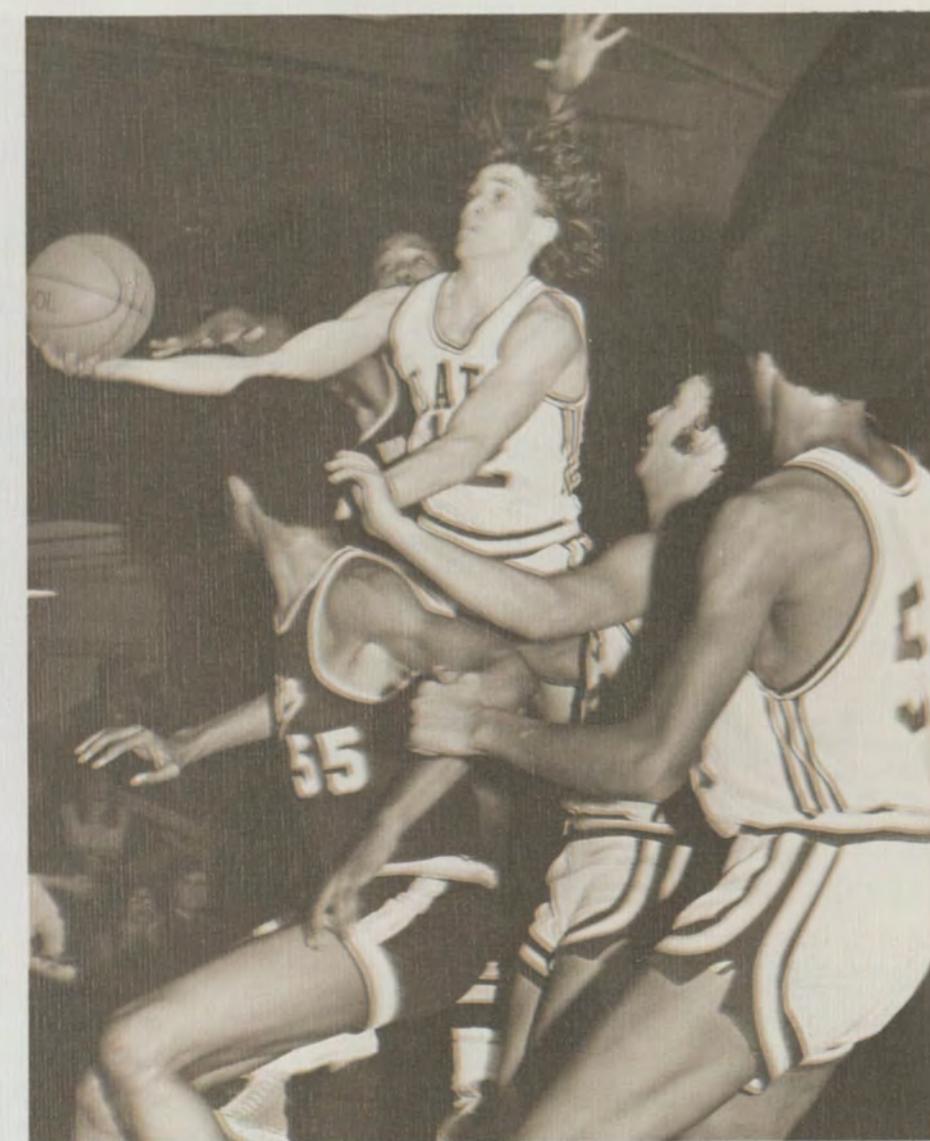

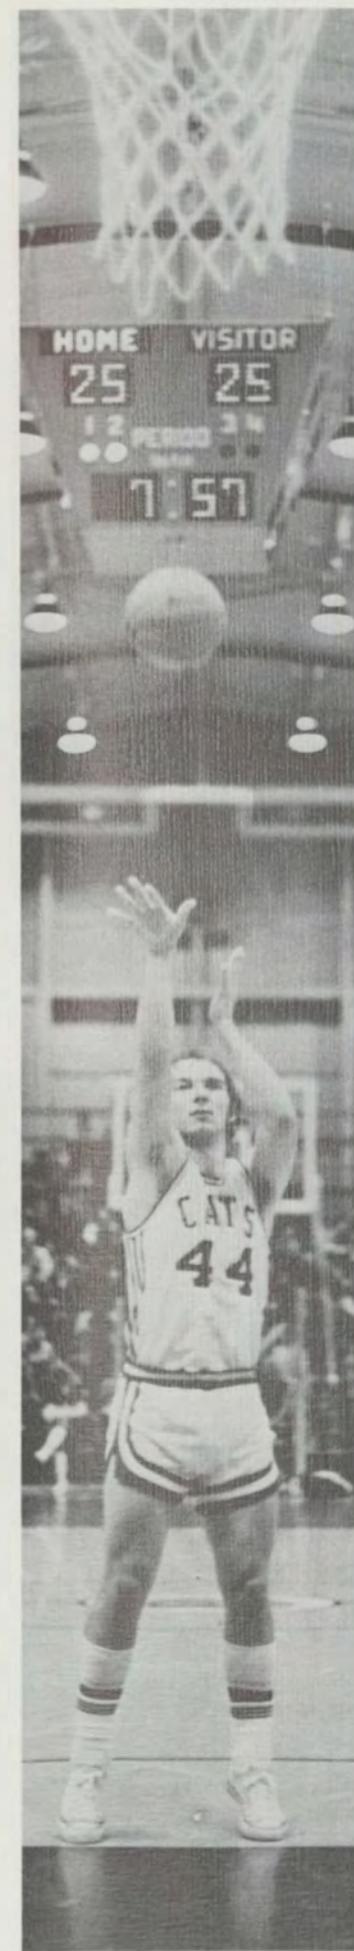

Freshman Ed Benson was the surprise player of the season. He started out with the reserve team, but was elevated to varsity. Benson played well enough to finish out the remaining three fourths of the team's schedule, playing every game.

With the return of this year's experienced lettermen, plus some new players, next year's prospects for a winning team look good.

Special Recognition — 1972 Athletes

Guy Falkenhagen, ABOVE, accepts a plaque from John Pringle, of the Detroit News, after being selected for the All-State Football Team. Guy also won an NCAA post-graduate scholarship, was Academic All-American, and was drafted 17th by Baltimore.

Field Hockey player, Liz Lamb, LEFT, was chosen as a member to the Midwestern Field Hockey teams. Her team compiled an overall 6-3 record while playing in Philadelphia and Long Beach.

Senior Gil Damiani, an outstanding wrestler and member of the football team, was voted The Most Valuable Football Player of the 1972 season.

Achievement

*Life is no brief candle to me.
It is a sort of splendid torch which I have got hold of for the moment,
and I want to make it burn as brightly as possible before handing it on to future generations.*
