County Retarded Children's Unit. To Meet Monday

Thomas Centko, assistant professor in the Department of Industrial Education at Northern Michigan University will be the speaker at a meeting of the Marquette County Association for Retarded Children scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Northwoods Supper Club.

Centko will show slides and lead a discussion on workshop programs and training of handicapped children for vocations.

He received his Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees from Illinois State University. From 1964 to 1968, he was a teacher and counselor for pre-vocational services for handicapped children in the special education department at LeGrange, Ill.

Friends and persons interested in becoming members of the county unit are invited to attend.

City, State Police Report 4 Accidents

State police from the Marquette post this morning said two area accidents occurred Friday.

One was a car-deer mishap on M-35 in Tilden Township about 6 p.m. Minor damage resulted to the auto involved.

The other was a two-car accident at 9:30 a.m. on U.S. 41 in Chocoyla Township, 1-2 miles north of M-28. Roger Kivi, Silver Creek Road, received a ticket for violation of the basic speed law (driving too fast for conditions), after his car hit an auto ahead of him which was slowing to turn. Both were damaged but drivable.

Two hit-run accidents were reported today by city police in Marquette. The cars damaged belonged to Harold E. Erickson, 910 W. Magnetice St., and William E. McWilliams, 254 Payne Hall, Northern Michigan University. Both occurred early this morning and are being investigated.

Ishpeming High School Accredited

ISHPEMING—Francis J. Dishnow, principal of the Ishpeming High School, was notified by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools that, for the 60th consecutive year, Ishpeming High School has been placed on the list of approved secondary schools.

The action was taken at the annual business meeting in Chicago. Each year the school's annual report is evaluated by a reviewing committee and once every seven years the school is re-evaluated by a committee of teachers and administrators appointed by NCA, who make a

More Martens Released In U.P.

Sixteen more pine martens were flown to the Upper Peninsula from Port Arthur, Ontario, Thursday for release in Delta County about 12 miles north of Rapid River. Ralph Bailey (left), Marquette, regional game biologist for the Department of Natural Resources, and William Aartila, Marquette, DNR game habitat biologist, are shown looking over the animals while they were being transferred from the plane to a truck at the Marquette County Airport. Earlier in the week four martens were released in the same area in Delta County in a cooperative project by the DNR and the U. S. Forest Service to restore this furbearer to the Upper Peninsula.

Ruppe Given Criteria By U. S. Agency For Job Corps Closing

The Labor Department has informed Congressman Philip E. Ruppe (R-Houghton) that the decision to close the Women's Job Corps Center in Marquette was based strictly on five objective criteria and in no way involves local personalities or opinions.

In answer to a question by The Mining Journal, Ruppe said today in Washington that the criteria used by the Labor Department in evaluating the success of each women's Job Corps center were:

First—and most important—is rate of job placement; second, cost per enrollee per man year; third, length of stay at the center; fourth, the 30-day dropout rate; and, fifth, the reading and mathematics gain. Demands Complete Figures
"I have demanded complete figures on the Marquette and other centers and will release them to the public as soon as they are received," Ruppe said.

Two Job Corps centers in Ruppe's district—the women's center at Northern Michigan University here and a men's conservation camp center in Gogebic County in the western Upper Peninsula—were among 59 centers the Labor Department has ordered closed in a $100 million slash in the Job Corps program.

The center at NMU was opened in July 1966 and is the only one in the nation on a college campus.

Views On Corps
Ruppe's comments represented the first indication of the basis for the federal government's decision to order the center here; closed. Dr. John X. Jamrich, NMU president, said earlier in the week he had been unable to learn from the federal government the rationale for the decision to close the center.

"I have always supported the concept of Job Corps," Ruppe told The Mining Journal. "It is my opinion that each formerly unemployable enrollee who finds a productive place in society because of Job Corps training will save the govern-

Detroit Edison $48 Million R

LANSING (AP)—Detroit Edison Co. wound up a week of hearings before the State Public Service Commission Friday asking for a $48 million annual rate increase.

C. F. Ogden, administrative vice president for the utility, said this represented about an 11 per cent hike in electric rates.

No Breakdown
Ogden said he could not break down the figure to how it might affect the individual customer. "It depends on how much the commission grants us and how ment many times over the initial investment of his or her Job Corps training expense. The problem which Job Corps seeks to solve is real indeed. Skill Centers

"My primary question in the phasing out of the Marquette center and others around the country is not one of economy as an end in itself but rather whether the individual centers were doing the most effective possible job for the money available.

"My second question is whether the proposed urban mini-centers will do a more effective job in providing opportunity to a greater number of people than those centers being closed. (The Labor Department said it would propose setting up 20 to 30 "skill centers" near city slums to help supplant the reduced Job Corps program.)

"My third question is what the administration has in mind for training disadvantaged youths from rural areas. While our population is spread more thinly in the Upper Peninsula, for example, we have some very real vocational problems comparable to those faced by urban youths."
