School Board Elections

There is no more nearly universal institution in any community than schools. The lives of all are influenced by them. The way in which they are administered is a direct reflection upon the community. Obviously, school policies and procedures should be of vital concern to the most competent persons who can be persuaded to serve as school board members.

And yet school board elections are rarely attended by anyone other than the few people who are eligible to cast ballots. This is particularly true in elections in which there is no apparent opposition to the incumbent board: for instance, where no one candidate has filed for a single vacancy. But there is a seasoned political hand who could result in the defeat of the candidate whose name appears alone on the ballot.

In the final analysis, the only way a qualified voter can ensure that his candidates is by exercising his franchise. Any citizen who is interested in better schools and more intelligent citizens — not should cast his ballot in Monday's election. It is the least he can do for his school's community.

Editor's Mail

Dear Sir:

In regards to the June 5 article in The Mining Journal concerning the demonstration at the city hall, I must say that I feel that there is some distortion in the article. There was no mention of the fact that the demonstration was held in a manner that was peaceful and orderly. The protesters were well-behaved and conducted themselves in a manner that was respectful of the police and the community.

Sincerely,

The Manistique yacht harbor, popular with fishermen and boaters, is a safe haven for those who need a place to rest and enjoy the quiet beauty of the water. The harbor is located on the east side of the Manistique Peninsula, just west of the Manistique-Brookside Bridge.

The harbor is well-equipped with yacht slips, boat storage, and various water-related facilities. The harbor is open to the public and is free to use. However, there are fees for docking and storage services.

Boating Accidents

Small boats by the hundreds of thousands are back in the water this month, freshly painted and repaired after a winter's storage. In the deep South many boat lovers are on the water most of the winter, but in most of the nation, June is the season to start back on the lakes and streams.

Play it Safe on the Waterway

If your boat over-turns, stay with it. The chances are you won't lose your boat and almost every individual in good enough physical condition can swim in rough or cold water. The key is to stay calm and use proper techniques.

Andrew Tully: Nasser's Record

WASHINGTON — In trying to do business with Egypt's President Nasser, and thus prevent the Egyptian-Israeli clash from developing into World War III, President Johnson has been haunted by the memory of Nasser's double-dealing and his public statements. The CIA predicts that a major devaluation of the Egyptian pound will occur in the near future.

The President was quoted as saying: "We cannot make a decision about the devaluation until we have more information about the situation in Egypt."
