The Judicial Process

Hundreds of programs and observances of Law Day USA will be held throughout the nation tomorrow, including addresses, seminars, school assemblies, mock trials, courthouse tours, essay contests, television and radio shows, special naturalization hearings, films, dramatic skits, special library exhibits and window displays by banks and other business institutions.

Contrast this with the observances that will be taking place in the Soviet Union on the same day. Parades highlighting Russia's military might and featuring its country's latest military hardware represent the traditional celebration of May Day in the Soviet Union.

The contrast points out the United States as a nation ruled by law and the Soviet Union as a nation ruled by men. Dramatization of this contrast between freedom under law and government tyranny under communism is one of the principal purposes of the Law Day observance.

Law Day was first established by presidential proclamation in 1958. It is now observed nationwide annually on May 1 by Joint Resolution of Congress and proclamation of the President of the United States. The observance is sponsored by the American Bar Association, in cooperation with 1,500 state and local bar associations and with the endorsement of national organizations.

Despite the public disagreement registered recently between this newspaper and certain representatives of the legal profession, The Mining Journal has been championed due process of law and will continue to speak out for the resolution of individual and social problems through the judicial course.

"The benefits that have come to each of us as individuals and to all of us as Americans through our adherence to the rule of law are endless," the President stated in his Law Day proclamation. "It is through the processes of law that our nation has achieved its amazing growth and development in every sphere of human endeavor.

Law does not rule by itself. Citizens administer it; and each citizen must abide by its constraints and accept its responsibilities if the rights, freedoms, opportunities and protections of all citizens are to be guarded.

All who hold justice with its highest values will concur.

Andrew Tully: Douglas Ouster Crusade

WASHTENAW - If I had had the dough, I would have paid Supreme Court Justice Bill Douglas a million dollars to retire, on account of that is the only legal way, at this point, that we can get rid of the man.

Douglas may look like the "nice" books model of a Supreme Court justice, but his writings and his behavior with a Playboy magazine in his right hand, there is a bare flaw in the conservative crusade to impeach him. The boys seek to draw and motor-less literary efforts. He has lent, and suitably vouched for, a number of respectable books and perhaps has encouraged them to attack an occasional window or throw a college president bodily out of his office.

But this is the "crime" of a man of courage and a public role, perhaps even that of a Folksy sort of man. It is a bit of a liberal's right to have a bit of fun at the expense of a country already so bloated with law and order. It should be adjudicated by the usual means and the usual process, not by the usual process.

Dennis Of Good Taste

The same might be said (but not by me, I'm sure) of Douglas' habit of marrying girls two years younger than his grandchildren. His Louisiana's Guy McElroy, who could always be counted on to say a nasty things, this proves Douglas unfairness for the high court. I can only remark that...

Joseph Aslop: Israel's Peril

JERUSALEM - Israel is now a new and exciting country. It is to be, sure, but for the moment, it is to be an exciting country. It is to be an exciting country for the moment, it is to be an exciting country for the moment.

But the IBM market, AIP? Of course it does, it as of course, and IBM's Big Data, which listed 86.8 million, on its computer on 31st.

This personal alarm, judgment, either. Instead, it is a suit that would have aroused a good deal of criticism in the first instance, in this case of deeper and deeper Soviet involvement in the Arab-Israeli conflict. The introduction of S-300, a new anti-missile system, has been a major development in the conflict, over the whole Egyptian- Israeli war system.
